Dear Sir,

I was in a conversation with Mr. Torrey of the Assay office. I was informed that you take great interest in rare coins, and that I would be able to ascertain through you, who the parties are that are so anxious to obtain a genuine silver dollar of 1804. and what they are willing to pay for one. I was offered here in the City six hundred dollars, but knowing that some of these lovers of rare money are willing to pay upwards of $1000 I am not over anxious to sell yet.

Kindly excuse trouble hereby caused to you and greatly oblige by an early reply.

Very Truly Yours

Louis Helmut
